Tea in the UK

One of the very important things in British people's daily life is tea.

A cup of tea when they wake up,
a cup of tea in the morning,
a cup of tea after lunch,
a cup of tea in the afternoon,
a cup of tea before they go to bed.

Even though they might not drink tea
at every point they have to drink at least one cup of tea a day.

As I've steadily drank tea
far the last few years,
I drink a few cups of tea a day and I can't live without it now.

You can make tea depending on your taste.
If you just brew the tea in hot water,
it's black tea.

If you add a little bit of milk,
it is milk tea.

And there are many people who like sweet milk tea
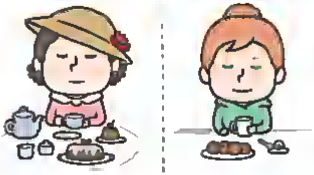
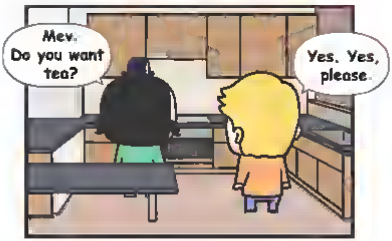
by adding sugar to milk tea.



It's traditianal to use tea leaves a teapot and cups but nowadays most peaple just use tea bags and a mug.

As time has passed by, the way to drink tea has became easier

But it's not so easy to drink tea with this person!!



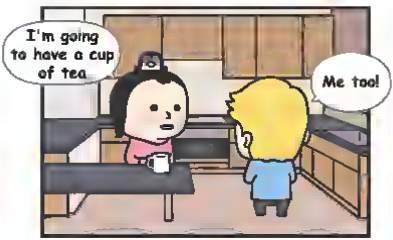
Mev. Do you want tea?
Yes. Yes, please.

One...

" I can't put the milk in before I brew the tea bag."

Two.

" I can't squeeze the tee bag with tea spoon when I get it out "



Three.

Here is your tea, Mev.
Yeap~ Thank you.
Today, I'll add some sugar in my What!?

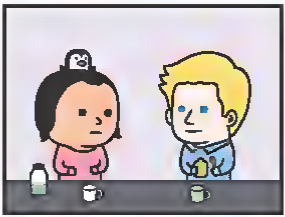
I said you can't put sugar in your tea!
It might taste better but it's worse for your health

Are you an animal?



Right...

Silly me
We are all animal Hahaha.
